

Transportation

 The DC Taxicab Commission has a new program called Transport DC that enables MetroAccess users who are District residents to get a taxi (a wheelchair accessible one if needed) within the District of Columbia for $5 one-way (payable with cash, credit or debit), plus free fare for up to two companion riders. Please be aware that only District residents who are registered with MetroAccess are eligible to participate.*

More Information

WMATA

- The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) Metrorail system serves 91 stations and has 117 miles of track. Metrobus serves the nation's capital 24 hours a day, seven days a week with 1,500 buses. Metro began its paratransit service, MetroAccess, in 1994; it provides about 2.3 million trips per year.*

MTM

- MTM is responsible for all non-emergency medical transportation within the Washington DC metropolitan area, including the city of Washington DC, the suburbs of Montgomery and Prince Georges County in Maryland, and Northern Virginia counties of Fairfax, Arlington and the City of Alexandria.

Taxi

- To request a wheelchair accessible taxi in Washington, DC, you can call Royal Taxi or Yellow Paratransit. D.C. accessible taxi service operates like traditional taxi service, providing curb-to-curb service. The taxi driver will help you get on and off the vehicle if needed. If you need help beyond this, you may want to bring someone else along to assist you. Taxi services are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.*