

- The District of Columbia Public Library provides environments that invite reading, learning and community discussion and equips people to learn all their lives, to embrace diversity and to build a thriving city.

- The UDC Community College Division of Workforce Development and Lifelong Learning (WDLL) provides District of Columbia residents with job skills training leading to employment. The industries focused on are those where jobs are available in the District and in the metropolitan area.

- Free or very low-cost classes can be found around town all year round in DC under the instruction of volunteer teachers. This list is starting point highlighting a few free education options in the District.